Homecoming was “the bomb!”

Kim Cockrell was crowned Homecoming Queen and reigned over a slate of successful events

By Kim Eaton

The second annual Shelton State Homecoming was a smashing success. According to Rick Rogers, assistant to the president, it was “the best Homecoming week we’ve had.”

It all began on Nov. 1 with the announcement of the Homecoming court. The five finalists, including Kimberly Cockrell, Kelly Moore, Samantha Hastings, Jessica Smith and Cindy Martin, then proceeded to campaign for the voting of Homecoming Queen. “I was very proud of the girls in the Homecoming court. They are all very intelligent and beautiful young women,” stated Lucy Kubiszyn, director of Public Relations.

The following day, retirees of the college along with members of the faculty and staff participated in a luncheon that was held in the food court area of the college. Shelton State President Tom Umphrey, who is himself scheduled to retire next fall, warmly spoke with old friends from table to table. Among those attending was Leo Sumner, Umphrey’s immediate predecessor.

The luncheon was followed by a Bach to Rock concert at 1 p.m. in the atrium. Music instructor Glinda Blackshear introduced a variety of acts that, literally, spanned the ages of music. Highlights included an Elvis imitator and a trio who sang a heavenly a capella of ancient tunes.

At 1 p.m. on Nov. 3, a pep rally was held outside the atrium with master of ceremonies Dr. Rick Rogers, assistant to the president. There was a radio remote from Ar-

Will the Tuscaloosa Trolley take you where you want to go?

By Dave Bowman

Timely taxicabs, busy bus stops, and steamy subway stations have never controlled Tuscaloosa’s transportation needs. Citizens rely on personal automobiles, perhaps a few ride busses—some walk. But what if there was a method of transportation that efficiently carried you where you needed to go—with a little flair?

The Department of Transportation, Tuscaloosa City Council and the University of Alabama have given the community the Tuscaloosa Trolley: three busses designed to look like old-fashioned trolleys which run up and down University Boulevard and through downtown during lunch and from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m.

The downtown business district has joined with the University of Alabama campus area in hopes of uniting the evening entertainment scene with the on-the-go lunch scene. Wright Hale, owner of Hale’s Tavern located on the University strip states, “I hope the trolley can help us for our lunch crowd. People won’t have to worry about losing their parking place if they use the trolley during lunch hour.”

The trolley was a major decision made collectively among certain Tuscaloosa merchants. Would it be a safe move? Would it cause conflict with other businesses? Will the public respond to it?

Edward Harris, co-owner of The Coppertop downtown, thinks the answer to all of these is yes. “The Tuscaloosa Trolley is a benefit for the game day crowd because it connects the University strip to downtown and it provides a safe ride for students.”

With proper identification, students, faculty, and staff members of the University of Alabama can ride for free. What about other surrounding colleges? Hale said, “The trolley is financially supported Shelton, this proves we can have fun-together!

Shelton students seemed to love the first Homecoming Dance

The first moment of truth came after the ball game when an announcement was made asking everyone to make their way outside to the bonfire. Once outside in the cold, would the students just head for their cars instead?

Lo and behold, a few stragglers headed that way; then a few more fell into line; then there were dozens. Ah, participation!

The next crucial moment came when it was time to herd everyone back into the gym for the first Homecoming Dance. Once outside, could you get them back in?

It helped that DJ Louie Linguini was sending out the insistent shock waves of very danceable rap music out the doors, drawing students—and some faculty and staff—back inside. Before anybody could even think, more than a hundred Shelton students were boogieing down.

Success! The gamble had paid off. The SGA, the Shelton Administration and especially Dean Humphrey Lee had gambled that students could be persuaded to join in activities—and they were right!

Congratulations would seem to be in order for Susan Mohun, a new employee in athletics who not only help student athletes with their academics but who has also seemed to breathe more life into student life by cajoling the Buccaneers into participating in many school events. We hope here at the Courier that the athletes have noticed what a positive effect they can have on everybody when they participate in a friendly way with their classmates at school functions. Keep it up. There are many ways to be a hero!

A thank you and congratulations would also seem to be in order to Dr. Rick Rogers, assistant to the president, who also championed the homecoming cause, particularly the dance. Rogers could be seen all week cheering us all on.

Leadership from the administration and participation from the students—a great place to work and go to school.

“Keep Looking Up!”

By Dr. Lee Albritton

Adopt a Pet for the Winter

If you have always wanted a large dog for a pet, the late fall and winter night time sky will be a golden opportunity! Canis Major—the “Big Dog”—is one of two dogs that belong to winter’s most dominated constellation—the mighty hunter—Orion!

To locate the larger of his dogs, we must first find Orion and both dogs will be coming up behind him. To find Orion, simply look on the eastern horizon and you will first notice his belt that is made of three very bright stars in a vertical line. His feet are to the right on the horizon, and his head and shoulders are to the left. Orion is on the horizon now, but by mid-winter as Earth continues to revolve around the sun, he will be almost due south at the same time of the night.

About an hour after Orion comes up you will see the brightest star of the winter sky—Sirius! This bright star is often called the “Dog Star,” for it makes the head and shoulders area of Canis Major—the “Big Dog!” His back legs are found below this bright star. Sirius is many times larger than our star—the Sun—and operates at much greater temperatures which gives the star its bluish color.

Do enjoy the beautiful fall weather and keep looking up during the cool, clear nights to find the mighty hunter—Orion—and his large, faithful hunting dog—Canis Major!

row 100.7, plus the Pepsi wagon selling hotdogs, chips and drinks. Various sporting teams—including both men's and women's basketball who were set to play that evening—were announced during this time, along with the Homecoming Court. SGA also performed a very entertaining skit to "Mambo No. 5."

A number of events took place on Nov. 4. During the day, several women and a few men in the fitness classes from Shelton Wellness Center held exercise demonstrations. They attracted quite a large audience as they demonstrated ways to keep in shape with the hypnotic beat of music.

In the gym that night, the bleachers crowded with fans, the men's and women's basketball teams played their first game of the season against Gadsden State and both teams experienced victory.

According to Rogers, it was "very exciting to play in front of a sell-out group for the first time." It was a wonderful way to begin the new season.

During half-time of the men's game, the Homecoming Court was announced and each finalist was escorted onto the court by her father. They were then presented with a rose as Phillip Coleman gave a brief history of each girl's achievements. Finally, the long-awaited moment came. All five finalists held their breath as Coleman announced the 1999-2000 Shelton State Homecoming Queen, Kimberly Cockrell. With tears of joy and utter surprise sketched upon her face, Cockrell was crowned by last year's queen, Becky Avery.

Following the game, Shelton had its traditional bonfire. The heat radiating from the fire made the cold air bearable as Shelton students and faculty watched the flames reach high into the night air. Immediately after, everyone stopped by the gym to check out Shelton State's first Homecoming Dance. Louie Linguini of 94.1 FM did an excellent job as DJ, and everyone seemed to have a great time.

According to Christy Sparks, a freshman at Shelton, "It was a nice experience for the students and we partied hard."

Sophomore Samantha Hastings—a member of the Homecoming court—added, "There was a larger turnout than I had expected and I am glad I went. I really had a good time and I hope Shelton plans on doing something like this again soon."

To close out the week, the Shelton Singers held their 20th anniversary reunion and concert on Nov. 6 and 7. All former members of the Shelton Singers were invited back to participate in a reunion on Saturday from 9 a.m. - noon. The next day, they held a concert in the recital hall. Glinda Blackshear reported that the event was wonderful. "That was the most beautiful singing I've ever heard in my life," Blackshear insisted. "Everyone there said we needed to do this again soon. I suppose we'll at least have to do it for the 25th reunion in five years."

All in all, this year's Homecoming was filled with fun and interesting activities. "I thought it was very successful and will continue to build each year. I would like to see more things added to Homecoming week next year. I also would like to see more activities scheduled for the students, like Homecoming," stated Kubiszyn.

by the University of Alabama so Shelton State students and Stillman College students can't ride for free."

The trolley system offers more than just convenient lifts between car rides. Passenger Tom Dickerson said, "I like the Alabama game tapes that are playing on an intercom system inside the trolley; they bring back a lot of great memories."

Regular fare is $1 each way, and persons 60 or older, disabled, or kindergarten through twelve may ride for fifty cents each way. An annual pass can be purchased for the trolley for $10.

Passengers may board the trolley stops at any safe location along the routes. Each trolley is lift-equipped for persons with disabilities.

So could the Tuscaloosa Trolley be a sign for better public transportation in the future? With its timely manner, attractive image, and thrifty cost, the trolley may successfully grow into covering all of Tuscaloosa's major populated areas. Max Culp, director of the Department of Transportation, said, "I hope to see a future regarding public transportation in the city. If more restaurant owners and entertainment vendors would support a shuttle system it would become more successful than just people using it on game days."

Culp said the trolley had over 10,000 passengers in October. Most of these riders were using the trolley on home-game weekends. On the weekend of the Tennessee game there were 3,500. On the weekend of homecoming there were 2,000 and on the LSU weekend there were 1,300.

The Tuscaloosa Trolley is making an impact on Tuscaloosa transportation, but probably not as strong of one as its supporters had hoped. More and more riders are needed, especially during the lunch hour when many trolleys seem to circle downtown with few passengers.

For now the new trolley system is designed to ease parking and bring some added quaintness to Tuscaloosa. Perhaps one day there will be a bona fide system involving everybody in town. But that day has not yet arrived. As restaurateur Hale said, "The Tuscaloosa Trolley idea wasn't preliminary to a mass transit. It's a great idea for the core businesses in town and for people to get around and not worry about parking, and we hope with time it will really catch on!"

Dust continues blowing up a storm

The hard rockin' group Dust, featured in the Courier earlier this semester, has continued to play at various venues throughout Alabama and Mississippi every weekend during the fall semester. This dynamic trio consists of Dave Bowman, a sophomore at Shelton, on guitar and vocals, Chris Arnold on drums and Justin Kenny on bass.

The band is currently working on a new full-length album that will be out at the first of the year. But for now, they have a five song EP available at Vinyl Solution and Whirligig Records.

"The band is on its way to a new frontier as soon as the new record is finished," states Bowman. The group has also begun construction on a website that will be available before Christmas.

Bowman has high hopes for the future of the band. He believes that Dust has "the potential and drive to accomplish much more than many of those that continue to wallow in negativity about everything we do."

Bowman continues to express his deep gratitude to those who have supported the band by coming to the live shows, all the letters and various phone messages.

One America celebrated at Shelton

"I wish to challenge the assumption that there should be One America," was the opening statement made by Dr. Charles Nuckolls on Oct. 27. Nuckolls was the guest speaker for the program "One America—The Values We Share."

About 60 faculty members as well as students learned more about the diverse cultures that bring people together.

Nuckolls talked about many cultures around the world. He commented about contradictions in American culture, including the value of independence vs. the value of community.

Debbie Grimes, Director of the Shelton State Library, was responsible for this program, and was very excited with the turnout. "His presentation was very scholarly, but it was appealing to the audience."

What's happenin' with clubs at Shelton State this year?

Student Government Association

Shelton State's second annual Homecoming week proved to be quite successful with the help of various organizations.

The pep rally on Nov. 3 included the announcement of the various sports teams, the homecoming court and a small skit performed by members of the SGA.

The game on Nov. 4 was also remarkable with both the women's and men's basketball teams creaming Gadsden State.

During half-time of men's game, SGA president, Kim Cockrell, was crowned by Becky Avery as Shelton State's 1999-2000 Homecoming Queen.

The trick-or-treating at the Child Development Center, Partlow and the Genesis House was very well received.

There is still a book drive going on in the library and will be until the end of November.

Meetings are held on Wednesdays at 12:15 in Room 1413.

Any other clubs wishing their news in the paper should contact the Courier at 2406.

High School Leadership Day will be Nov. 16. It is geared to promote leadership skills and abilities to high school juniors. All organizations are asked to contribute something to put into a folder that will be given to the students.

Phi Theta Kappa is also writing and illustrating a children's story for a regional contest being held at the end of the year.

Phi Theta Kappa meetings will be held on Tuesdays at 12:30 in Room 1413.

Baptist Campus Ministries

If you are interested in Bible studies and a chance to fellowship with students who share your same interests, Baptist Campus Ministries is the place for you.

The meetings will be on Wednesdays at 11:30 in Room 1413. If anyone has any interest in BCM, contact Clint Wortham, the student minister, at 391-9123.

Phi Theta Kappa is also sponsoring a time capsule and asking the different student organizations to bring in items that will represent their club and/or members.

Spring registration will feature new and improved advising

By J. Sloan Stewart

On Nov. 17 Shelton State will begin an advising program, developed by Arthur Howington, dean of Academics, for the Spring semester of 2000. This program was set up so students can get advising when needed and is available for all currently enrolled students needing assistance in developing a curriculum.

"The newly installed advising system is an effort made by the administration to help students clear up any questions or confusion about the courses offered," said Diane Layton, director of Admissions/Registrar.

Although advising has never been a requirement, like at the University of Alabama, administrators believe the efforts put forth by the advisors will help make registration easier for students. Night students will also be able to take advantage of this new system.

Advising for the spring semester 2000 will be held in the Atrium at the following times:

Nov. 17:	11 a.m.- 2 p.m. 5-6 p.m.
Nov. 18:	11 a.m.-2 p.m. 5-6 p.m.
Nov. 19:	11 a.m.-2 p.m.
Nov. 22:	11 a.m.-2 p.m. 5-6 p.m.
Nov. 23:	11 a.m.-2 p.m. 5-6 p.m.

Other improvements are being made in the telephone registration system. Last semester, students said there were not enough phone lines for them to get through. In answer to those complaints, the college has installed more incoming lines into the school to avoid busy signals. The telephone registration system is primarily intended for students seeking classes not easily attained during open registration.

A bonus of the telephone registration system was a prerequisite check. This will keep students from registering for a class where they have not taken the required classes leading to the new class. Layton believes that this will help to "prevent confusion in course requirements."

Telephone registration for the Spring semester 2000 will be as follows:

Nov. 29:	2 - 6 p.m.
Nov. 30:	3 - 6 p.m.
Dec. 1:	3 - 6 p.m.
Dec. 2:	3 - 6 p.m.

Last day to pay for phone registration will be Dec. 3.

Another fairly new project involves the use of the Internet in order to help community college students is the STARS system.

Four years ago, state law said the first two years of junior college course work had to transfer to a four-year school.

The STARS system offers students a transfer guide to understand which classes you need to take. As long as you follow the program, all courses will have to transfer to a four-year institution, "no questions asked," states Layton.

In order to access this program, students will need to go to the AGSC / STARS home page at <http://stars.troyst.edu>.

If you have problems or need assistance, you can either write, call or fax:

AGSC / STARS
101 Adams Admin. Bldg.
Troy, AL 36081
(334) 670-3690 phone
(334) 670-3695 fax

Make sure to take advantage of these improvements and make your registration much easier.
